MCFADDEN & PRICE.

The Joplin Herald man had a bad dream last week and is taken to task about it by S. G. Franklia, who says through the Carterville Journal: "On arriving home from the reunion at Camp Logan, Baxter Springs, Kansas, I noticed an article from the Joplin Herald, stating that a country girl had been enticed from the dance platform, drugged and stripped of her clothing and seduced. In reply to the article I want to say: In the first place there was no dancing floor on the grounds of the camp, therefore the whole thing is a falsehood, or in plain words a lie gotten up to stigmatize the reunion, or written by some one that didn't know what he was writing."

Joplin News: "Another 'fly drummer,' who was 'too killing' to be passed by unnoticed, got a head put on him Saturday night that he can eat hay with. He travels for a fish house of St. Louis, but his name could not be learned. He was parading the streets showing his beautiful shape, and when opposite the Joplin Hotel insulted two young ladies by his persistent attention and galvanized gull. One of the ladies by chance had a brother near by who saw the maneuvers of the dog-faced fish dispenser, and stepping up, dealt him a blow that knocked him from under his hat, which he left in the street and ran to the hotel. He did not leave his room until this morning, and then took an early train out of town. His fish sales in Joplin will be rather 'scaley' in the future."

Joplin News: "A News reporter has interviewed Superintendent C. W. McDaniels of the Missouri & Kansas Telephone company, in regard to the new line which the company proposes to construct between Joplin and Pittsburg, Kans. Mr. McDaniels says the executive board of the company has authorized the construction of a standard metallic circuit telephone line between Joplin and Pittsburg, of the same materials and specifications as used in the construction of the long distance telephone lines in the east, and the work of construction is to be begun as soon as the material is received. It is the intention of the company, in time, to construct a regular long distance telephone system between Joplin and Kansas City, connecting Pittsburg, Girard, Fort Scott, Nevada, Butler and Harrisonville. A line is now in operation between Kansas City and Harrisonville, and this line to Pittsburg from Joplin is to be the southern link in the chain. Between Joplin and Pittsburg the line will take in the towns of Carl Junction, Waco and Opolis. Cedar poles are to be used, six inches in diameter, twenty-five feet long and set forty to the mile, and two No. 10 copper wires will be strung. This line when completed to Pittsburg and the smaller towns between, will be a great convenience to Joplin, but the benefit will be greatly increased when the line is completed to Kansas City, and the Long Distance Telephone company, which now connects St. Louis, Chicago, New York, Washington and Boston, has its contemplated extension to Kansas City completed. Joplin can then converse with the commercial kings in New York or Boston and the political barons in Washington and attend to business at home all on the same day."

DEATH OF BABY SCOTT.

Raymond N. Scott, babe of W. W. and N. E. Scott of this city, born February 16, 1894, and died September 6, 1894. This bereavement is peculiarly sad. Little Ray came to brighten this home which had been for nearly nineteen years without the light and life of babyhood, and he was a very remarkably perfect, healthy and beautiful child. Never were prospects more flattering, in every respect, for all that doting parents and fondest friends could conceive, until July 31, when the "shining mark" was smitten. Through all the weary weeks since, the little one was an intense sufferer, and his waning and paling seemed allowed of our Heavenly Father to prepare the parents and loving ones to more easily loose their clasp and lay him in the arms of Jesus. In health he was unusually cheerful. Who ever saw him cry? Also remarkably observing, noticing the things of nature, fond of flowers, and having a recognition for each member of the family and friend. In sickness he seemed to show his superior spirit, so sweet, sunny and submissive. Indeed Baby Scott was a favorite in an unreserved degree. This was proven more and more as the weeks went by, for business men, and all classes were continuously inquiring "How is the child?" and all would do all they could to care for the little sufferer, and aid the grief-bowed family. But all attention and skill could not keep him. He passed through the vale, to be forever free from fever and pain. He was given for a purpose, and undoubtedly the great Divine purpose will be perfected. Was he made an idol? Thee think of him as an all-attractive magnet to fasten your affections to the infinite. Your sorrow is beyond human fathoming, only the giver of the fount of love knows its depths. "He shall not return to you, but you may go to him." These inspired words were the closing ones of the comforting lesson chosen by the stricken father, beginning at the 10th verse of the 12th chapter of 23 Samuel. May all sorrowing ones live to realize the opportunity opened by these living words.

The family desires here and thus to express their most heartfelt appreciation and sincerest gratitude to each one for every expression of interest, kindness, friendship and love manifested during all this. All expressions were noted, though they were varied and numerous. The Sunday school came laden with fragrant flowers. The little sunbeams came in a body, bearing the beautiful wreaths. Three little boys bore a floral cross. The Epworth League and Junior League presented their loving proofs and friends showered their offerings.

The funeral services were at the residence Friday afternoon conducted by the pastor, Rev. J. A. Young, and Rev. M. E. Bannhall (who was a devoted friend of the family). The singing was very touching, as the little ones sang "The Angels Are Looking on Me," and "When He Cometh to Make up His Jewels." Also when "Nearer, My God, to Thee" was rendered. Everything about the tomb and burial was made to relieve as much as human hearts and hands could do, the deep, riveting anguish of the crushed hearts.

GOOD SERVICE.

Probably no town ever enjoyed better police service than did Baxter Springs last week. Marshal Gill scarcely closed his eyes in sleep during the entire week, and with his able assistants maintained almost perfect order, which is a difficult thing to do in a crowd of 4,000 or 50,000 transient people. A great many arrests were made early in the week, and this seemed to hold the tough element in check. Several important captures were made. Both the new and old jails were filled with transgressors of the law, and during the reunion seventy-one cases were tried before Police Judge English. In fact, Judge English's mill ground out its grist steadily all the week.

To Marshal Gill is due the thanks of our citizens for maintaining good order and giving the "narrow" a chance to sleep, notwithstanding the fact there was hardly standing room in town.

NOTICE.

All persons acting as special police, either for the city or Reunion Association, during reunion week or since, who have in their possession any revolvers, moneys, spectacles, knives or other property or effects taken from the persons of prisoners, will please bring or send the same to my office at once and save trouble.

W. S. NORTON, Mayor.

HURRAH FOR ANDY!

A. H. Skidmore is Nominated for Judge of the Eleventh Judicial District, and He Will be Elected.

The judicial convention held at Weir City this week did good work when it nominated Hon. A. H. Skidmore of Columbus, for judge of the Eleventh judicial district. Each county in the district presented a candidate. They were Skidmore of Cherokee, Case of Labette, and Clark of Montgomery. The balloting was very tedious and lasted a long time, but right will always prevail, and finally Skidmore was nominated, Case withdrawing from the contest. Montgomery county, with her customary hoggishness, kept her candidate in the race until the finish.

Mr. Skidmore is well known to almost every voter in this district as a competent man for the judgeship. If ever there was an honest lawyer (we don't say there ever was) Mr. Skidmore is one. If the voters of the Eleventh judicial district, regardless of party affiliation, do their duty, he will be triumphantly elected and will administer justice with a firm hand when he dons his official robes.

OPENING OF THE COLLEGE.

The Baxter Springs Normal and Business College was opened Monday morning for the fall term. Forty-four students are enrolled and the work is progressing nicely. At least fifteen more students will enter by the last of next week.

The Baxter Springs Normal and Business College is one of the best appointed institutions of learning in the West. The furniture is all new, the floors are carpeted, the windows are curtained, and in fact, everything looks cosy and homelike. The institution is bound to succeed. It has the best faculty in Southeastern Kansas; the courses of study are thorough and systematic, and the instructors know their business. Our home people should patronize this institution liberally. It is as good, and we may say better, than any like institution of learning for hundreds of miles, and by patronizing it you can keep your children at home, and this in itself is a great item. The terms are reasonable and as good or better results will be obtained here. Try it. Patronize home institutions and keep your money at home. Business courses, shorthand, typewriting, art and music are taught.

We shall have more to say next week. Meanwhile, send your children to the Baxter Springs Normal and Business College. Visit the college, you will be made welcome.

BADLY NEEDED.

Do you know there is not an empty dwelling house in town fit to live in? Do you realize the fact that twenty-five neat little cottages could be rented at once at a good figure? If not, you should put on your studying cap and see if you can't do something toward supplying the demand.

The Baxter Springs Normal and Business College is making a demand for cottages. Twenty-five good families stand ready to move to Baxter Springs as soon as they can find places to live. They want to send their children to the college, which, by the way, is one of the best in the state. Cannot something be done at once toward supplying this demand for dwelling houses? Not a day passes but somebody is in town hunting a house to live in, but none are to be had. Something must be done, or by the great horn spoon we will compel some of our delinquents to pay up so we can build some houses, and we could build two or three good ones if we had what is due us.

The Heavy End of a Hatch.
"Mary," said Farmer Flint at the breakfast table as he asked for the second cup of coffee, "I've made a discovery."

"Well, Cyrus, you're about the last one I'd expect of such a thing; but what is it?"

"I have found that the heavy end of a hatch is its light end," responded Cyrus with a grin that would have adorned a skull.
